AN INCIDENT AT YUMA LAND- ING.

CASSIDIAN'S MULE.

The mule stood on the steamboat deck.
The land he would not tread;
They pulled a halter round his neck,
And whacked him over the head.

Yet firm and steadfast there he stood,
As though formed for to rule;
A critic of heroic mould,
Was that there stubborn mule.

They cursed and swore—he would not go,
Until he felt inclined;
And though they showered blows on blow,
He wouldn't change his mind.

The deck hands to the shore then cried,
"This here mule's bound to stay,"
And still upon the critter's hide
With lash they fired away.

The master from the shore replied—
"The boat's about to sail,
And every other means you've tried.
Suppose you twist his tail."

It's likely that will make him land "
The deck man, brave though pale,
Approached him with his outstretched hand
To twist that there mule's tail.

Then came a sudden kick behind!
The man—oh, where was he!
Ask of the softly blowing wind—
The fishes in the sea.

For a moment there was not a sound,
As that mule winked his eye,
As though to ask of those around,
"Now, how is that for high?"

"Cut that there mule's throat right away,"
The captain did command,
But the noblest critter killed that day
Was the fearless, brave deck hand.

WHISTLING—We believe in whistling. We love to hear it and we love to do it. The boy or man at the plow who whistles indicates that he is contented, and he will plow more than your silent, glum one "who hath no music in his soul," nor in his lips. The man who don't believe in whistling should go a step farther, and put a muzzle on bobolinks and mocking-birds. Whistling is a great institution. It oils the wheel of care and supplies the place of sunshine. A man who whistles has a good heart under his shirt front. Such a man not only works more willingly than any other man, but he works more constantly. A whistling cobbler will earn as much again money as a cord-wainer who gives way to low spirits and indigestion. Mean or avaricious men never whistle. Who ever heard of a whistler among the sharp practitioners of Wall street? We pause for an answer. The man who attacks whistling throws a stone at the head of hilarity, and would, if he could, rob June of its roses and August of its meadow larks. Such a man should be looked to.—Ohio Farmer.

A certain Cincinnati wag lately distinguished himself in New York. Dining at a noted restaurant, he read on the bill of fare a request to the guests to report "any want of attention." He sent for the landlord and with an aggrieved air pointed out the notice. "Has there been any want of attention?" queried the landlord. "Indignantly," "I should think there has. I have been here 15 minutes and no one has had the politeness to ask me to take a drink!" Boniface, fully appreciating the joke, at once opened a bottle of champagne.
